Stories of Faith

Storyteller: Barbara Tegeler

It was September 11, 2001, at 8:46am in New York City, and I was in downtown Manhattan. I had been to New York several times over the years and loved it. This particular trip was the same as other prior trips: going to Broadway for plays, eating at some of the best restaurants, showing my friends all the tourist attractions, and of course, shopping.

I was staying in a friend's apartment this time instead of a hotel. Our friend asked us to meet for breakfast at a new restaurant near the World Trade Center at 9:00 so we all were rushing to get dressed. It was 8:30, and we still needed to catch a cab. All of a sudden we hear an explosion. I look out the window and see hundreds of people running. It was 8:46. We turned on the television news and realized why everyone was running. The World Trade Center was attacked by terrorists.

I truly believe God was watching over me. If we had been on time for breakfast, I would not be telling my story. I immediately got my cell phone and called home. I spoke with my daughters and husband and basically told them I loved them and that was not sure if I was going to make it home. In other words, I said good-bye. Then my cell phone would not work because everyone in Manhattan was on their cell. There was no service. I was scared, confused, and wondering what to do.

All of a sudden, I got strength and courage and an incredible sensation of leadership to leave and get us home .... but how? Airports were closed and no taxis were available, so I told my friends to follow me, and we started walking. I didn't know where we were going but I knew...

SUNDAY MORNING WORSHIP: IMPORTANT UPDATES

Instructions and Information for our September Outdoor Services

1. For September 6, 13, 20 and 27, we will have shared services at 9am at St Paul. They will be the same style as they have been in past weeks; people can stay in their cars, or choose to bring lawn chairs and blankets and be outside. On the 27th, pets and animals are invited! (see page 10)

2. At St Paul, please park on the outside wings of the driveway, so that those seated in the shade can still hear over the sounds of engine fans. There is shade in the “front lawn” of the church under the trees. We will set up in front of the church, on the sidewalk that goes in front of the flowerbed. For those with higher risk factors, I strongly encourage you to favor the parking lot radio style of participation.

3. For our children—these services will now include children’s bulletins, and a “children’s time” focused on storytelling during the readings.

4. We will continue communion— “BYOC” style! Please bring your own bread/cracker and grape juice to both settings. We have an outdoor keyboard setup for music as well.

5. Again, these are shared services—the tech setup prevents us from being able to worship at both places individually on the same morning. We hope this can be a time where we can become more familiar with each other’s faces and church grounds!

6. We are also continuing our 1pm KWHI radio services through September 20th. After that date, the time is changing to 4:30pm.

7. Councils are having conversations about late fall and winter, including Christmas Eve. We continue to pray for the hard work happening in laboratories working on a vaccine and other research on the virus.

**A note from Pastor Evan: I understand that many people simply aren’t comfortable exposing themselves or risking exposure to family / patients / etc. *No one is going to hold guilt or judgment based on attendance.

Lutheran World Relief

Lutheran World Relief suffered a great loss in the explosion in Beirut recently. Three containers of LWR quilts and kits amounting to more than 47,000 items were destroyed.

A gift to LWR will send help to those who are suffering.

Go to Lutheran World Relief online to donate, or you can bring an offering on Sunday morning with a specific memo line for LWR.

The story of ‘Come From Away,’ and what it can teach us now

I have loved musicals as long as I can remember. Growing up, we wore out VHS tapes of Grease and Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat (the latter partially because my siblings and I loved it, and partially because my mom loved Donny Osmond). I’ve always been fascinated by the magic of live theatre, and the way a story, told through music, can become both so memorable and so personable.

In February of this year, Katharine and I drove to Austin to see a show called Come From Away for the first time. It tells the story of a tiny little Canadian town called Gander, way up north on the east coast. On September 11, 2001, when US airspace was closed, 38 international flights coming from Africa, the Middle East, and Europe were re-routed to Gander because....well, they had to land somewhere. A town of 9,000 people absorbed 7,000 humans carried in by 38 jumbo jets from all over the world. They did this in the span of 12 hours. For comparison, imagine if Bellville doubled in size in the course of a day—and imagine that most people who were suddenly there did not speak English. They called the people who got off the plane “the come from aways,” because they truly came from everywhere. It is the best modern day version I know of the ‘good Samaritan’ story, with a dash of the ‘feeding of the 5,000’ mixed in.

So, how did Gander pull it off? Just about every home took in a handful of people. Schools were converted into mass hotels. Church pews became beds, and sanctuaries became, well, sanctuaries. Translators were brought in. Grocery stores gave everything away for free, and donations poured in from nearby cities, flooding the town with toilet paper, casseroles, frozen meat, water, formula, clothes, diapers, you name it. Perhaps most importantly (as you can imagine from Barbara’s story), endless landline phones were donated, so that the stranded travelers could tell panicking loved ones that they were safe.

I’ve listened to the soundtrack again as COVID took hold, as the opposite of Gander unfolded around us: food and toilet paper and hygiene items were hoarded, and often, too many hands pointed to blame instead of reaching out to help. As another September 11 arrives, may the people of Gander teach us yet again that the most beautiful expressions of faith include kindness, generosity, and community.

PS: if you want to know more of the story, read The Day the World Came to Town by Jim DeFede

Pastor Evan

we had to leave immediately. As we were walking, I was knocking on car windows asking for a ride. The traffic was incredible. I walked for a long time between cars knocking and asking for help. Finally a man in a van said we could get in. There weren't any seats in the back so we just sat on the floor with his tools. He was going across to New Jersey but traffic was stopped because of a bomb threat on the bridge. We finally crossed, and he let us out. But even then I could only think, now what do I do?

Somehow, we hired a car to take us further into New Jersey. We were on our way. It was getting dark and the driver needed to stop for gas. I looked back towards the horrible sight of everything burning in New York. I was so sad and felt guilty for being alive, especially later knowing almost 3,000 people died that day. When looking back at the burning towers that night, I thought about the story in the Bible about Lot's wife. God told her "Don't look back!" I wish I had not. I will forever see that image. I eventually made it home, driving a rental car 1,662 miles back home.

I left out a few things in my story but we need another day for that. I am so grateful for my life but will never compare to the stories other people have. I went through nothing compared to what so many went through that day. I have never been back to New York since and never want to. I don't watch TV on September 11th, as it makes me too sad.

Many thanks to Barbara for having the courage and vulnerability to tell this faith story. We give thanks too for the kindness of unknown strangers, like the van driver in this story, who make this world a better place, even in the face of crisis and fear.

Blessing of the Animals Worship Sunday, September 27 9am, both churches, at St Paul

Both St. James and St. Paul have past traditions of hosting a “blessing of the animals” service. Neither church has done one for a few years, but since we are already meeting outside, this is a great chance to again have such a gathering!

You are invited and encouraged to bring along any pets, or frankly any animal, that you would like to bless, to church on Sunday 9/27. Pastor Evan will have simple blessings to share with families. Please be mindful of leashes, etc so that we don't end up with too much chaos as we will still maintain good distancing practices. You are also certainly welcome to bring your pet, and keep him/her with you in your car the whole time.

We will do this on 9/27 because it is close to the Feast of St. Francis, who of course was famous for his preference to walk into the woods and preach to the birds and animals and trees rather than being confined inside a church.

ST. JAMES CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

October 11 after worship

You can stay in your car or stay seated outside just like our standard worship practice.

LOOKING FOR SUNDAY VOLUNTEERS

We need volunteers to usher at worship services. Simply wear a mask, greet folks in cars as they arrive for worship and hand out bulletins. Contact Pr. Evan or Donna and Tanya at the church office to volunteer.

SEEKING CONFIRMATION “FAITH VISITORS” THIS FALL

We are resuming confirmation classes starting September 2nd, and we will meet 2x per month throughout the fall, all on Zoom for now.

Pastor Evan is looking for some adults who would be willing to sign in to Zoom just for one night, to say hello to the students, and to take 5-10 minutes to share what their faith has meant for them in their adult life. There would then be space for the students to ask the visiting adult questions.

All of us make promises to our youth at baptisms to support their faith formation - consider this a tangible way that you can give one night to be present with some of our young adults, to help make faith in the real world real to them, and to give them another example of faith outside of their own families.

Talk to Pastor Evan
(pastorevan@sjsplutheran.org, 330-407-9731) if you are interested in being a one night guest star!
